Introduction

Thanks for purchasing The Definitive Guide to Free Fonts! It goes a long way to helping support my side project Typewolf. I spent a ton of time creating this guide, so I hope that you find it valuable.

Free fonts have come a long way in recent years. Professional designers have long looked down on free fonts as amateurish. But thanks to the web and open-source movements, that all has been changing. I wrote an article for Smashing Magazine that explores this topic—I urge you to check it out.

An Exclusive Section of Typewolf Featuring Only Free Fonts

I created a special section of Typewolf available exclusively to purchasers of this guide. Please don't share the link with anyone! It features only sites using free fonts and serves as a great source of design inspiration showing what can be done with free fonts. Check it out here.

A Special Note About Free Fonts

In general, most free fonts make a poor alternative to commercial fonts. Always purchase commercial fonts whenever your project has the budget for it. Type designers need the support of the design community in order to continue producing quality typefaces. Only relying on free fonts will devalue the profession of typeface design and hurt us all as designers.

The 10 Best Serif + Sans-Serif Font Combinations on Google Fonts

With over 800 font families available on Google Fonts, it can be a challenge finding serifs and sans-serifs that complement each other. A font used for setting body copy, whether a serif or sans-serif, must meet certain criteria: it must include regular, italic, bold and bold italic styles and it must render well on screen at smaller sizes, meaning it should have low to moderate stroke contrast, large counters, open apertures and an adequate x-height. Each body copy font in the following list meets this criteria and includes a companion font that harmonizes nicely with it.

1) Playfair Display + Fira Sans

Fira Sans is a humanist design, drawing its shapes from Erik Spiekermann's famous FF Meta. On first glance it might not be an obvious choice to pair with Playfair Display, which clearly has more of a Modern/geometric influence. However, on closer examination you can see that the basic shapes of both typefaces are quite similar with short descenders, slightly condensed letterforms and a large x-height.

The Gray Wolf

The gray wolf is one of the world's best known and well researched animals, with probably more books written about it than any other wildlife species. It has a long history of association with humans, having been despised and hunted in most pastoral communities due to its attacks on livestock, while conversely being respected in some agrarian and hunter-gatherer societies.

The Fear of Wolves

Although the fear of wolves is pervasive in many human societies, the majority of recorded attacks on people have been attributed to animals suffering from rabies. Non-rabid wolves have attacked and killed people, mainly children, but this is unusual, as wolves are relatively few, live away from people, and have been taught to fear humans by hunters and shepherds.

2) Domine + Open Sans

Open Sans is an extremely popular font on the web but, surprisingly, I don't think I've ever encountered it paired with Domine. The two typefaces harmonize beautifully together. Notice the marked similarities of the "g" glyphs—other than the ear and slightly higher stroke contrast of Domine, the shapes are nearly identical. Both typefaces share similar large x-heights and as well as spacious counters.

3) Alegreya Sans + Alegreya

Alegreya and its sans-serif counterpart, Alegreya Sans, are among the most seldom used Google Fonts but that should really change as they are among the highest quality free fonts available. Both the serif and sans-serif version are built from the same calligraphic, humanist skeleton and share many of the same design details, such as the detached arm and leg on the “k”.

4) Montserrat + Arvo

Arvo is a geometric slab serif that includes italics and renders surprisingly well at smaller sizes—this makes it a perfectly viable option for setting body copy. Both Arvo and the sans-serif Montserrat are derived from geometric shapes (notice how the “o” glyphs are nearly perfect circles) and both have a stoutness to them that gives them a similar strong and sturdy appearance.

5) Source Serif Pro + Source Sans Pro

Source Serif Pro unfortunately does not contain italics (they are currently in the works) so that rules it out for setting body copy, however, it still makes an excellent serif for headlines. Source Sans Pro is an ideal sans-serif for setting body copy with its large x-height and open apertures. Both the serif and sans-serif designs feature the same slightly condensed proportions that naturally harmonize.

6) Neuton + Lato

I would classify Lato as a “neo-humanist” design—its open apertures and subtly rounded corners give it a contemporary feel. Neuton, although displaying ample evidence of the humanist pen, features many contemporary characteristics as well, such as a large x-height. Both typefaces feature similar large apertures—notice the extremely large opening in both of the “c” characters below.

7) Merriweather Sans + Merriweather

Merriweather is one of my favorite serifs for setting body copy as it's one of the few serifs available on Google Fonts that fall into the "contemporary" serif category. Contemporary serifs have large x-heights, low stroke contrast and open apertures which make them ideal for reading on screen. Merriweather Sans shares these details and features the same slightly condensed letterforms as Merriweather.

8) Rosario + Crimson Text

Old Style serifs such as Crimson Text are sometimes classified as “humanist” serifs, as their shapes are derived from handwritten forms. They tend to harmonize well with humanist sans-serifs as both show influence from a pen held in the hand. Rosario, with its subtly flared terminals and flowing italics, harmonizes well with the similar humanist characteristics of Crimson Text.

9) Varela Round + Lora

Varela Round and Lora both have a warmth and friendliness to them that makes them an excellent pair. The warmth of Varela Round comes from its soft, rounded corners and a similar feeling is derived from Lora with its open apertures and curvy, flowing italics. The ball terminals of Lora (see the “a” and “g”) harmonize nicely with the rounded terminals of Varela Round.

Roboto Slab is another font that doesn't seem to be used very much, which is a shame because it's one of the best slabs on Google Fonts. Roboto Slab and Roboto both share similar geometric skeletons—you can see in the image below that the lowercase “g” characters are nearly identical between the slab serif and sans-serif versions, making them excellent companions.

Dark spruce forest frowned on either side the frozen waterway. The trees had been stripped by a recent wind of their white covering of frost, and they seemed to lean toward each other, black and ominous, in the fading light. A vast silence reigned over the land. The land itself was a desolation, lifeless, without movement, so lone and cold that the spirit of it was not even that of sadness.

FROZEN-HEARTED NORTHLAND WILD

DARK SPRUCE FOREST FROWNS ON EITHER SIDE THE FROZEN WATERWAY. THE TREES HAD BEEN STRIPPED BY A RECENT WIND OF THEIR WHITE COVERING OF FROST, AND THEY SEEMED TO LEAN TOWARD EACH OTHER, BLACK AND OMINOUS, IN THE FADING LIGHT. A VAST SILENCE REIGNED OVER THE LAND. THE LAND ITSELF WAS A DESOLATION, LIFELESS, WITHOUT MOVEMENT, SO LONE AND COLD THAT THE SPIRIT OF IT WAS NOT EVEN THAT OF SADNESS.
